

Elks Open Battle on Narcotics

A drive against narcotic addiction among teenagers will be opened by the Torrance Elks Lodge tonight at 8 p.m. when Joseph Yates, chairman of the Elks committee calls to order a meeting of representatives of civic and fraternal organizations.

Yates, former exalted ruler of the Torrance Lodge, declared "we are not crusading, but are entering a deadly serious fight to stem the rapidly rising tide of narcotic addiction among our children. Your children are even now exposed to the gravest danger, whether or not you choose to believe it."

To introduce the problem to all citizens, Yates said the lodge will present a motion picture at its first session tonight at the lodge, 1851 W. Carson st. Yates invited leaders of all civic and fraternal organizations and urged them to send representatives to the meeting.

Harvey Takes New Name

Harvey Machine Co., Inc., founded in 1914, will change its corporate name to Harvey Aluminum, effective January 10. Lawrence A. Harvey, executive vice president, announced this week.

"In view of our growth and expansion in the aluminum industry, the change is necessary to identify more closely the company with its products," said Harvey. "Ownership, corporate structure, management, operations, and control remain unchanged; nothing has been changed except the name," he added.

Harvey is a primary aluminum producer of pig, ingot, and billet and a fabricator of wrought aluminum mill products including extrusions, forgings, impact extrusions, rod, bar pipe, structurals, tubing, screw machines, etc. Facilities operated by the company are located in Torrance; The Dalles, Oregon; Salem, Oregon; and Milan, Tennessee.

The factory branches and sales offices maintained by Harvey in the major marketing areas include Seattle; San Francisco; Los Angeles; San Diego; Dallas; St. Louis; Chicago; Detroit; Washington, L. C.; and Atlanta.

Among the divisions functioning under Harvey Aluminum are Harvey Aluminum Sales, Inc.; Harvey Machine Co., Harcraft Brass; Harvey Aluminum Structures; Harvey Research and Development; Harvey Aluminum Sales, Inc., Defense Plants Division; Harvey Aluminum Containers; and Harvey Screw Machine Products.

In addition to aluminum, the company produces titanium and titanium ingot, billet, forgings, extrusions, special tubing, rod, and bar. Mill and fabricated products also are made by Harvey in brass, magnesium, steel and rare metals.

Other aluminum products available from Harvey include: airframe sections, architectural shapes, automotive shapes, bus bar, castings, cold forgings, curtain wall sections, electrical conductors, fittings, forging stock, furniture tube, hand forgings, handrails, highway railing, hollow bar stock, house trailer sections, irrigation pipe, press forgings, railroad shapes, screw machine stock, slipbuilding shapes, skids, store front sections, structural assemblies, and truck and trailer sections.

Executive offices of the company are located in Torrance.

Harvey Aluminum is a trade name used for many years by the aluminum division.
